Law and Order League Officials
Confer With the Police Board—
Officer Knight of Randolph
Has Talk With Supt. Moffatt—
League is After Hotel Keepers

Patrolman Charles H. Hersey, who was recently exonerated after a hearing of charges preferred against him, has now to answer new charges preferred against him by Mrs. Nora McCutcheon, sister of Mrs. Mary Boyle, who was recently arrested by Patrolman Hersey and who subsequently committed suicide in a cell in the police station.

Dennis J. Murphy, counsel for Mrs. McCutcheon, who also appeared in behalf of Messrs. Massam and Tejerian on the previous charges preferred, filed a complaint and bill of particulars in the present case, and this morning Patrolman Hersey and his counsel, William H. Bent, and also lawyer Dennis J. Murphy appeared before the police board at a meeting held at nine o'clock and the board voted to give Patrolman Hersey a hearing next Wednesday morning at nine o'clock.

When asked as to whether or not the hearing would be public, Chairman Stearns stated that he was unable to answer, but in all probability the hearing, like the previous one, will be held behind closed doors.

The complaint against Patrolman Hersey is as follows: Lowell, Mass., Oct. 21, 1908. To the Board of Police of the City of Lowell:

I hereby bring complaint before your honorable board against Patrolman Charles Hersey of the Lowell police force, and I respectfully request that on or about Wednesday evening, the 14th day of October last, the said Patrolman Hersey be called at a house where I was visiting and used coarse and profane language and when asked certain questions by me he answered in a short and careless manner which lacked attention and courtesy. I further represent that the said Patrolman Hersey called at my late sister's home on the evening above mentioned, and there, in the presence of several witnesses used coarse and profane language.

Witness my hand this twenty-first day of October in the year one thousand nine hundred and eight.

the foregoing complaint and says that the coarse language used by the said Patrolman Hersey consisted in the use of these words: "If you ain't careful, I will take you down, too," and the complainant further says that the profane and coarse language used by the said Hersey consisted in the use of the following words: "Crazy old woman," "You ain't got no sense," "You ain't got no brains," "You ain't got no money," "You ain't got no friends," "You ain't got no family," "You ain't got no nothing."

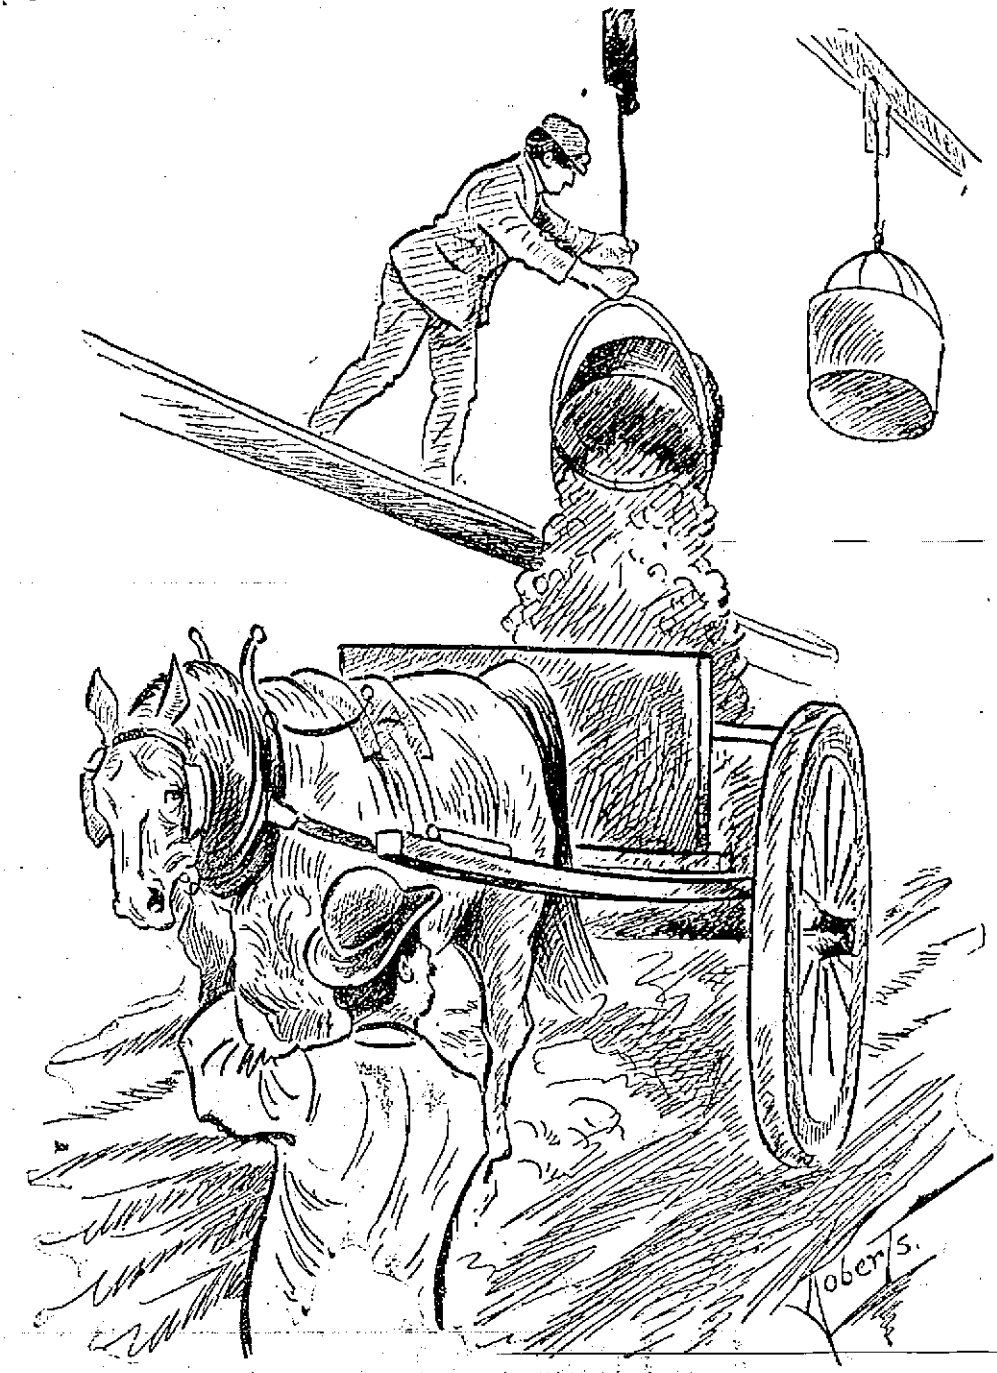

While the board was in session E. H. Knight, chief of police of Randolph, Mass., who has been active in securing evidence for the Law and Order league and against alleged violators of the liquor laws, called and was anxious to have a conference with Supt. Moffatt. The latter was called out from the meeting of the board and Messrs. Knight and Moffatt had a five-minute conference in a rear room.

As Mr. Knight was leaving the room Secretary Charles A. Merrill, of the Law and Order league, entered and while the greeting between the two men appeared to be cordial, a rather heated argument was held in an undertone. Judging from the words that were passed there was some conflict relative to the issuance of complaints against violators of the liquor law.

As Mr. Knight was leaving Mr. Merrill, he said: "I didn't suppose that when I was fighting the liquor dealers I was fighting temperance people, too."

The Law and Order league also played a very prominent part in this morning's meeting of the board. The league asked for a conference with the board and about 10 o'clock this morning George W. Putnam, president of the league and Charles A. Merrill, secretary, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Ferrin, were invited to appear in the sanctum where the board holds the meetings.

The conference in which the board of police and members of the Law and Order league participated was held behind closed doors, but nevertheless a portion of the conversation could be heard by those in the outer room and the only conclusion that can be drawn is that the meeting was not a harmonious one by any means.

SKETCH SHOWING THE MANNER IN WHICH TEAMS ARE QUICKLY LOADED FROM THE BUCKETS OF THE SEWER TROLLEY SYSTEM NOW OPERATING IN MERRIMACK SQUARE.

THE SEWER WORK

AS CONDUCTED BY TROLLEY AT MERRIMACK SQUARE.

There isn't anything going on in the line of work in this city, perhaps, that attracts as much attention as the lowering of the sewer in Merrimack street, where the tramway trolley system for the removal of dirt is in operation.

Supt. Morse said today that he was much pleased with the way the work was progressing. The same system was used in this city about nine years ago, but it has been so improved since then that it is capable of doing almost twice the work.

The work of educating the sewer men to operate the trolley system was a little slow at first, but they handle it now as though they had known it for years. One can form some estimate of the amount of work that the trolley buckets can do by figuring that they average a trip about every four minutes and each trip means one yard and a half of dirt. There are no idle moments for the men in the sewer, and their job is not an enviable one. The work of filling the tubs is much more lively than that of filling dump carts.

The engine that runs the apparatus is the property of the city, and this is the first time it has been used since the system was operated in this city about nine years ago. The engine was stiff at first, but it limbered up all right and is doing its work in good shape. The engine had been up before it was housed-in.

The scene in Merrimack square last was a rather unusual one. The buckets being operated in the glare of the electric lights and the constant puffing of the engine proved sufficiently interesting to hold a big crowd, some of whom watched the operations until almost midnight.

The apparatus is not only a saver of labor and time, but it keeps the streets clear because it does away with the dirt in the street, the three tip carts loading from directly beneath the wooden superstructure.

The dirt is being carried around the corner in Paige and John streets, and just as soon as the tramway, which stands on rails so that it can be moved readily, is pushed along toward John street, the first excavation having been made, there will be no more dumping into tip carts for the dirt from the next excavation will be dumped back into the one that is now being made, and when the digging is all over the dirt in Paige and John streets will be used to fill the final excavation.

VERDICT OF $200

In the Case of Legasse vs. the Boston & Northern Road

When the superior civil court opened at the court house in Gorham street this morning, Judge White charged the jury in the case of Ernest Legasse who brought suit against the Boston & Northern Street Railway to recover damages for personal injuries and injury to a horse and wagon. The evidence and arguments in the case were put in yesterday afternoon. The defendant claimed that on June 1, 1908, while he was driving a wood wagon on Lakeview avenue, an electric car was driven against his wagon, through the carelessness of the motor-man, and he was thrown from a high seat and injured and the team was damaged.

James F. Owens appeared for the plaintiff and F. N. Wier for the defense. The jury in the case, before the noon adjournment today, reported a verdict of $200 for the plaintiff.

Lannon vs. Cameron
After charging the jury in the case already mentioned the case of Thomas Lannon vs. Daniel Cameron, an action of contract, was taken up. D. J. Murphy for the plaintiff and Burke & Corbett for the defendant.

The plaintiff's declaration was that the defendant owes him the sum of $104.75 cents, according to the following account: To money borrowed, $30; to five months' wages, $125; total, $215. Credit by cash and incidentals—$110.75; balance, $104.25. This case went to the jury this afternoon.

Viewed the Premises
The jury in the case of the Lowell & Fitchburg street railway brought by George W. Bussey of Westford, for trespassing, went to take a view of the premises before the case opened. This was a procedure a little out of the ordinary and it is expected that the case will be quite interesting. The plaintiff charges that the defendant trespassed on his property and his declaration is quite a lengthy one.

"BLACK HAND" GANG

WARREN, R. I., Oct. 23.—That John Fucci of Providence whose body was found Wednesday night with five bullet wounds was lured to his death by a "black hand" gang from New York city was the theory advanced today by Chief of Police Samuel Bowden who has been at work on the case.

The body was positively identified this forenoon. Fucci, who was a cripple, 29 years old, had a wife and child in Italy, had lived in the United States but three years and in Providence about four months. The only known relative in this country is a brother-in-law whose home is said to be in New York city.

The man was a baker by trade and boarded on Federal Hill in Providence. Several friends who identified his body stated to Chief Bowden that to their knowledge Fucci did not have an enemy in the world. They seemed to be of the opinion that the murder was the work of the "black hand."

Chief Bowden said that he knew of no Rhode Island "black hand" society and that he believed that they must have come from New York city.

The Providence police were notified of the developments and went to work on the case at once. Fucci's past life will be gone into thoroughly and the friends which he made in New York city will be looked up.

MONEY ALL GONE

Health Department Employees Had to Go Without Pay

This was the city's pay day, but not for the employees of the board of health yard, and there won't be any pay day for them next week either. This is due to the fact that the board's yard appropriation is exhausted; a case of "if you ain't got the money you needn't come 'round."

The board has written a communication to the committee on appropriations asking for more money, but no recommendation has as yet been made by the committee.

WOMEN'S CHOICE FOOTWEAR

$3.50 to $5

The shoes we tell about today are worthy to be worn at the dressiest function. Not only are the styles dainty and the shoes well made, but there is an air of elegance about them that is always lacking in a cheap shoe. The prettily arched instep and the dainty heel and the finish proclaim them distinctive. Nothing better in the shoe world at the price.

One style is of D width, Russia calf, button and lace, with modified Cuban heel. Another is of gun metal calf, button and lace, with military heel. Another is cloth top, patent foxing with French heel—we could tell you of more but these will make you want to see them. The $3.00 and $4.00 shoes are beauties too, and pretty enough for any occasion. Come in and see these before you make your selection of fall footwear.

FRANCHISE LOST

Voters of Cleveland Opposed to Municipal Traction Co.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 23.—The franchise under which the Municipal Traction company is operating the local street railway lines upon a three-cent fare basis, was defeated by a majority of 879 in the referendum vote here yesterday. The total vote cast was upwards of 75,000. The returns are exclusive of one precinct which is still missing, but cannot affect the result. Early in the evening the unofficial returns indicated a majority in favor of the franchise and a celebration was begun by the supporters of the franchise. Near midnight an error was found which changed the result. The defeat of the franchise may mean that the railway property will revert to its original owners and that the old fare strike which lasted seven years will be renewed. The only alternative will be for the city council at once to grant a new franchise, which will save the property to the Municipal Traction company.

mean that the railway property will revert to its original owners and that the old fare strike which lasted seven years will be renewed. The only alternative will be for the city council at once to grant a new franchise, which will save the property to the Municipal Traction company.

It is stated by unprejudiced observers that the franchise was defeated not so much upon the issue involved as upon the general dissatisfaction of the public toward the service given by the operating company.

The vote came as the climax to the general street railway contest which has been waged here for years, with three cent fare and ultimate municipal ownership as the goal of the city administration. This was constantly opposed by the old Cleveland Electric Railway company, which had been charging a five cent rate.

During the progress of the strike a new company, the Forest City Railway company, fostered by the city, began the operation of cars over a few competing lines on a three cent fare basis.

The settlement finally came under an agreement to consolidate the two companies and lease the property to an operating company, the Municipal Traction Co., which agreed to make the general fare within the city of Cleveland three cents. Accordingly a new company, the Cleveland Railway company, was organized to take over the consolidated properties. Under the agreement a twenty-five year franchise was granted to the Cleveland Railway company. Then the property and franchise were leased to the Municipal Traction company for ninety-nine years upon the condition that the operating company protect the property and pay a rental equal to six per cent, dividend upon the stock of the Cleveland Railway company, a $30,000,000 corporation. It has been during only the last three months that the operating company has had a surplus.

To place the property upon a paying basis at the lower rate of fare the service was greatly curtailed and this caused great antagonism to the new regime. During the first month the motorcars and conductors declared a strike because the Municipal Traction company did not carry out a contract the men had with the old Cleveland Electric Railway company for an increase in wages. When the striking car men found that they were losing the fight they decided they would compel consideration from the new company by taking advantage of the state initiative and referendum law and call for a vote upon the new franchise. The strike was dropped and the former employees directed their attention to the referendum. That vote was held yesterday.

A BIG RECEPTION

Tendered Bryan in West Virginia

INNTON, W. Va., Oct. 23.—Enthusiastically received everywhere, William J. Bryan yesterday carried his warfare into West Virginia. The line of travel took him through the Ohio, Kanawha and New River valleys, and he was afforded an opportunity to speak to many farmers and miners. Having but a few hours' rest, following his campaign in Ohio yesterday, he was out on the platform as early as 7 o'clock, telling farmers, in his opinion, why they should vote the democratic ticket. The republican party, he said, had no policy to offer which would bring them relief.

Passing on into the coal district he devoted much attention to the labor question, and while not specifically referring to Mr. Roosevelt's letter, entered a defense of President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. He repeated his warning to laboring men not to be coerced by their employers into voting against their wills.

The most notable demonstration accorded him was at Charleston. He was escorted through the streets by a number of uniformed marching clubs headed by bands, while almost every building was decorated with flags and bunting. From the moment he left his special train across the river, until he reached the platform on a lot across from the courthouse, he was wildly cheered. His speech was devoted to a general discussion of the issues of the campaign.

At Thurmond he got a rousing reception. A picturesque feature here was the erection of a grandstand upon the side of a mountain having a background of an immense banner with a portrait of the candidate, over which were the words, "Shall the People Rule?"

The people cheered vociferously his almost every utterance. He spoke of the fact that in most of the industrial and mining centres he had visited or passed he noticed women standing along the streets waving their aprons.

"I am of the opinion," he said, "that if I don't go in on a tidal wave this time, surely will on an apron wave."

The remark was loudly cheered. Early this morning Mr. Bryan was handed a copy of a newspaper containing President Roosevelt's criticism of himself and Samuel Gompers concerning their positions with respect to the labor question. Shortly afterward he began the preparation of a reply, but his time was so taken up during the day that he found it impossible to complete it.

Mr. Bryan left here for New York at 10:30 o'clock over the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad on his special car attached to the regular train.

LAST CHANCE

TO MAKE TRIP TO MT. UNCA-NOONUC

Next Sunday the last opportunity will be given those who wish to go on the special excursion conducted by the Boston & Northern St. Ry. Co. to Mt. Uncanoonuc, N. H. The plans for this excursion will be the same as those of the previous Sundays, the special car leaving Merrimack square at 8:15, 9:45 and 10:15 a. m., and returning from the mountain at 3 p. m.

These excursions have been especially successful, increasing in patronage with each succeeding Sunday, as the people realize from the enthusiastic stories of those who went that this trip to the mountain with the beautiful view of the country after reaching there really constitutes one of the finest outings in New England.

"Why, I never saw anything so beautiful in all my life!" exclaimed one young lady after the last trip. "I could slide up and down on that inclined railway all day and would like to just spend a whole month right on top of the mountain. It is just glorious."

That is the popular opinion, and it is probably true that anyone who has never been there has never seen anything just like it in his or her life. It is seldom that one can find a combination all in one trip of the many beauties, novel features and delights presented by these excursions.

MANY LIVES SAVED

Fire in Charlestown Caused Loss of $25,000

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—In a fire that destroyed the Bunker Hill laundry, 10 and 12 Dunstable street, Charlestown, early last evening, between 40 and 50 girls had to flee for their lives, some being forced to jump from third and fourth-story windows to the roof of a one-story stable, being cut off by the flames and smoke. Several were injured and all of them suffered a bad fright. The damage amounts to about $25,000.

Miss Kitty O'Neil, 32 West street, Malden, was injured in the back and internally, and was taken to the relief station. Her condition late last night was not considered serious.

Catherine Barnett, 44 Austin street, Charlestown, sustained injuries to an arm and leg, and was also hurt internally. She was taken to her home, Mrs. Susan McGonagle, 58 Corey street, Charlestown, has a sprained back and internal injuries. She also was conveyed to her home.

May O'Brien, of 49 Dacin street, Dorchester, complained of slight injuries, but was able to reach her home without assistance.

The fire had gained such headway before it was discovered that the employees were panic-stricken, and had it not been for the cool-headedness of Foreman C. F. Hill, who is known as Ernest, many lives would probably have been lost. Mr. Hill did heroic work, remaining hemmed in by fire and smoke, assisting the frightened girls to places of safety, and was finally compelled to jump from the second-story window.

THOS. J. GARGAN HE KILLED GIRL

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—The will of Thomas J. Gargan was filed in the probate court yesterday. The value of the estate is roughly estimated at $70,000, consisting of $60,000 in personal and $10,000 in real estate.

His wife, Helena Nordhoff Gargan, is named as executrix, and the bond was fixed at $100,000. The will was executed on March 28, 1908, and under it Mrs. Gargan receives $40,000, together with 50 shares of stock of the United States Trust company, 100 shares of the preferred stock of the Massachusetts Gas company, and all books, furniture, pictures and bric-a-brac in the houses at 14 Brimmer street, Boston, and at Falmouth Heights.

His law partners, Patrick M. Keating and Sewall C. Brackett, are given his valuable law library, and his confidential clerk, James M. Lane, receives $2500.

The St. Vincent de Paul conference of St. Joseph's parish, in the West End, in which Mr. Gargan formerly lived; the Boston Catholic union, for a library fund; the New England Catholic Historical society, the Home for Destitute Roman Catholic Children and the Working Girls' Home are each to receive $100, and the Working Boys' Home gets $500.

His sisters, Rose, Mary and Teresa, are to divide equally $30,000, and of the death of the last survivor it is his desire that if any of the principal remains it shall go to the children of the testator's brother, Joseph M. Gargan. His nephew, Thomas J. Gargan, and two nieces, Alice and Helen Burke, are each given $1000.

Mr. Gargan requests his wife to select from his private library a book for each of his lifelong friends, A. S. Sherman, Joseph Smith, James Jeffrey Roche, and Thomas B. Fitzpatrick.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Movement to Form a Men's Club Started

At the residence of Rev. George B. Dean, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, last night, a meeting was held, the purpose of which was the forming of a church men's club. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Devoe, of the First Universalist church, and Mr. Stockbridge of the Saverly club. There was a good attendance and a committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and set of by-laws, which will be submitted at the next meeting.

HE KILLED GIRL

After Asking Her to Wed Him

HOLYOKE, Oct. 23.—Enraged because Cassilda Beaudry, the young woman to whom he was engaged, refused to say whether she would keep her promise to marry him, Arthur Boudreau, Jr., shot and killed the girl last night at her home, 153 Main street. When arrested a short time later by the police, Boudreau is said to have declared that he had had his revenge and he was willing to take the consequences.

Miss Beaudry was 20 years of age and lived with her mother, Mrs. Rose Beaudry, and several younger sisters. It was said that her marriage with Boudreau had been set for November 12, but that lately a disagreement had arisen between the pair. Last night he called at the house and met the girl alone in the kitchen, the shooting taking place almost immediately after his entrance. Two children, sisters of the girl, were asleep in a room adjoining the kitchen and heard the quarrel which preceded the shooting. According to the little girls, Boudreau demanded to know whether Miss Beaudry had decided to marry him, and when the young woman replied "no" he did not answer tonight, the man drew a revolver and fired two shots. One of them entered the girl's heart while the other passed through a window in the kitchen.

Miss Beaudry lived only a few minutes after the shooting, and neighbors who rushed to the scene from the other apartments of the tenement block, found her lying on the floor of the kitchen. Boudreau made no attempt to escape.

$2500 LOSS

MEN SAVE THEIR HOMES AT NEWBURYPORT

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 23.—The plant of the Merrimack Pottery company, corner of Greenleaf and Fulton streets, comprising a number of small buildings, was badly damaged by fire last night.

The blaze was of incendiary origin and started in the two-story wooden storehouse and quickly communicated to the baking building, a long one-story brick structure. When the department arrived both buildings were in flames and Chief Osborne ordered a second alarm. The man drew a revolver and fired two shots. One of them entered the girl's heart while the other passed through a window in the kitchen.

At one time Richardson's comb shop and several houses in the vicinity were threatened. The air was filled with sparks and men on roofs of houses fought the fires with buckets of water. The house occupied by Clarence Lunt was saved with difficulty. All the furniture was removed.

The loss will be in the vicinity of $2500, partially covered by insurance. The plant of the Pottery company was owned by the estate of Frank A. Bray and had not been operated since his death a few days ago.

A MAD DEER

BUCK ATTACKS FARMER IN THE WOODS

FRANKLIN, N. H., Oct. 23.—William S. Roberts, a Northfield farmer, had an exciting encounter with a big buck deer in the woods near his home yesterday. Mr. Roberts was driving through a woodlot, when the deer charged upon him.

The deer knocked down the horse Mr. Roberts was driving and then sprang for him. Mr. Roberts struck it a blow with an axe and smashed off one antler. The deer retreated a short distance and then returned, heading for Mr. Roberts with a snort. Another knockdown of the buck, and the deer headed into the woods.

Several complaints had been previously made regarding the savage disposition of the deer, but this is the first time he has deliberately attacked a man.

BARN DESTROYED

Valuable Horse Lost in J. C. Donovan's Barn

But for the timely discovery by a postman a fire that broke out in a barn in Branch street at 1.45 this morning would undoubtedly have done serious damage. The barn was the property of James C. Donovan and is situated in the rear of his house, 176 Branch street.

James looking their way through cracks in the barn attracted the postman's attention and he sent in an alarm from box 17. There was a quick response by the department but the fire had already gained good headway and the barn was badly gutted before the firemen got the upper hand. A valuable horse was burned to death and four carriages were destroyed. The fire reached an oil adjoining the house and it, too, was quite badly burned. The cause of the fire is unknown and Mr. Donovan has not yet submitted an estimate of his loss.

FIRE ON STACKPOLE STREET
The alarm from box 181 this morning was for a small fire in a house in Stackpole street. A curtain caught fire and the blaze was communicated to a lounge. Damage was slight. G. L. Whidden carried the insurance.

STILL AT LARGE NEW BOULEVARD

Newburyport Yeggmen Not Captured

NEWBURYPORT, Oct. 23.—After an all-day hunt the police of this city and surrounding towns have given up the search for the men who yesterday morning made three desperate breaks in Newbury and one Wednesday night in this city.

Wednesday night the first break was reported at the residence of ex-Councilman Alfred D. Merrill on Arlington street. Many valuables were taken.

About 3.15 yesterday morning the thieves entered Willard Dole's general store in Newbury. After ransacking the telephone pay station, they placed powerful charges of nitro-glycerine in the safe door, and when the charge exploded it not only blew the safe to atoms but wrecked the store in general. The crooks were frightened off by Dole, who ran out partly clothed, revolver in hand. They left many valuable papers and money behind. Capt. Charles Wells at the Newburyport police station sent a squad of officers out to watch the roads and telephoned Haverhill and other places.

The yeggs also broke into the Woodbridge school, where they stole a quantity of soap, and into Little's blacksmith shop, where tools were taken.

To be Discussed With Selectmen

LAWRENCE, Oct. 23.—County Commissioner James C. Poor yesterday announced that within two weeks everything will be prepared to meet the Methuen selectmen and arrange for the building of the proposed boulevard between Lawrence, Methuen and Lowell. An estimate of the cost is being figured by a corps of engineers and will be submitted to the town officials. If the cost is agreed upon an apportionment will be made between Lawrence, Methuen and Essex county. Middlesex county, of which Lowell is a part, is co-operating with Essex county.

Best music, Sat. eve, O. L. A. M. hall.

THE SHAMROCKS

HELD A DELIGHTFUL OCTOBER DANCE

A delightful October dancing party was held last evening in Prescott hall by the Shamrock baseball club. The dance was attended by several hundred couples who danced the eighteen numbers which made up the order.

The music for dancing was furnished by the Calumet orchestra. The orchestra was hidden behind a screen of palms.

The souvenir presented was a dance order of the most artistic kind.

The affair was under the entire supervision of the following young men: General manager, John J. Queenan; assistant general manager, George H. McDermott; four directors, Patrick H. Kelley, assistant director, Frank White, chief aid, James J. Clinton; aids, Martin McCarthy, John J. Crowley, Thomas J. Malone, William Fawcett, Stephen A. Shelvey, Thomas Fitzgerald, William Mills, Cornelius Kelly, Thomas Flynn and Curtis Garrity.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS

Blamed for Robberies in Beverly

BEVERLY, Oct. 23.—Robberies in homes of wealth, baffling to the police both by reason of frequent occurrence and the mystery surrounding the methods adopted, were apparently explained yesterday, when two girls aged 6 and 12 years, led officers who visited their home to a trunk in the garret, where diamonds, other gems and silverware valued at $500 which they had purloined were recovered.

Under the pretence of selling soap to their victims, these precocious children worked. Had a modern Fagin directed their efforts they could not have been more successful.

According to the claims of their parents, the tots told them the articles of jewelry thus secured were given to them by an intoxicated man.

The police are surprised that the alleged generosity of this person was not thoroughly looked into, yet they do not claim that older persons had anything to do with the plans the children carried out.

One of the articles recovered was a diamond earring valued at $100, which, together with silverware and bric-a-brac, was stolen from the palatial home of S. E. Sherman on Lathrop street.

Break after break had been reported to the authorities, and though extra vigilance had been maintained, no clue presented itself as to the culprits. But the officers noticed that a majority of the visits by thieves occurred in the daytime.

Wednesday a woman who had lost articles of value heard the two girls speaking of something they had secured as they passed her in the street. She notified the police. Officers followed the children to their home and yesterday visited the place with a search warrant.

Both children cried bitterly when the blue-coated officials confronted them and bade them show where they kept what they had taken. Among the loot were a sapphire and pearl ring valued at $25, a valuable brooch, half a dozen silver spoons, six silver fruit knives, a shell necklace and a gold stickpin.

SON OF KAISER

Weds the Duchess Alexander Victoria

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Duchess Alexander Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, daughter of Prince Frederick, Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, was married in the chapel of imperial palace yesterday to Prince August William of Prussia, fourth son of Emperor William.

The ceremony was witnessed by the members of the imperial family and some fifty princes and princesses of the minor German royal households. Chancellor Von Buelow, as well as the other higher state functionaries, the members of the diplomatic corps, including Ambassador Hill and the members of the embassy staff, with their wives together with about eight hundred guests, also were present.

The civil ceremony was held in the private apartment of the palace, after which the empress placed the Hohenzollern crown upon the head of the young princess. The royal party then marched to the chapel. The bride was clad in a white silk dress trimmed with lace and her train, which was embroidered with silver and thirteen feet long, was borne by four pages. The ceremony of the Lutheran state church was performed by Dr. Brander, the court preacher. The emperor and the empress kissed the bridal couple.

PLAYGROUNDS

HOW THE SYSTEM WAS STARTED AND DEVELOPED

The following from "Playground," a monthly publication, issued in New York, shows what the city of Salem is doing to provide public playgrounds. "What public-spirited citizens under efficient leadership can do for the children of a city, was well illustrated in Salem last summer."

The Young Men's Christian association furnished leadership and know-how, and a splendid committee was organized composed of leading citizens. In March, 1907, the first money was raised, by a widely advertised 'Gym' exhibition given in the best local theatre. A little later a lecture by Jacob Kils aided by well-written newspaper articles made "Playgrounds" the talk of the town.

"The balance of the money was raised by subscription in amounts from one to two hundred dollars, about $2,500 being raised altogether."

Five places were selected by the committee. One on city land, one controlled by the Y. M. C. A., three on private property. The private lots were loaned to the committee free of charge. These were located near the most congested parts of the city and within walking distance of every child.

"Two directors were placed on each ground. These men were carefully selected and were all trained or experienced leaders in the work, seven of them being Springfield Training school men. This provision for efficient leadership was considered one of the chief factors in the success of the movement."

"On July 1st the playgrounds opened with five vacant lots and ten enthusiastic leaders. Work and play began at once. The boys were set to work to clean up the grounds, etc. When they tired of the work, games and races were organized for them. Gradually new games and apparatus were added as the need grew. Each director was allowed to design apparatus suitable for his ground. This was built by local carpenters at a small outlay. Two of the grounds were on the harbor front and were provided with swimming places. Shower baths were added to the equipment of the other three. Thus in a short time five well-equipped playgrounds were running and doing a splendid work."

"Junior and senior baseball leagues were organized. Hare and hound runs, hiking parties taken into the country, and many other good times were provided for the boys. Profanity and cigarette smoking became almost lost arts."

"At the close of the season apparently everyone in the city had nothing but praise for the work done and hoped that it would be continued."

"This year it is expected the city government will provide the funds and maintain the work so well begun last year."

"G. S. Maxwell, Supervisor of Broad Street Playground."

DIAMOND NOTES

Ed. Walsh of the Chicago White Sox made a most remarkable record on the diamond this year. What Walsh has done to the White Sox this year is summarized in the amazing fact that he has pitched in 31 of the 136 games the White Sox have played this year, including drawn battles. That is 12 more than one-third of all the games his team has played and only 14 games less than half of the total Sox contests.

Fifteen times during the year Walsh has been hailed to the rubber to relieve pitchers who were in distress, and nine times he has started games himself. Only six times has he been taken out of games which he has started, and then it was usually to save him in contests which were hopelessly lost by his supporters.

In the unofficial records Walsh has been credited with 37 victories, 15 defeats and one tie game. Eleven of his appearances on the slab have been in victories or defeats for other Sox pitchers. Several of his 15 defeats have been due to his taking games in desperate situations, but often that he has lost under those circumstances he has saved the game. His pitching average has suffered, however, as a result of defeats in games which he did not start, as a defeat takes more of a winning pitcher's mark than a victory adds to it.

In all, Walsh has pitched 491 innings during the season, and in those rounds he has issued 51 passes and struck out 165 batsmen, his best performance being 15 passes in eight innings when he was beaten 1 to 0 by Joes, who pitched a "Cy" Young world's record game in order to do it. A total of 335 hits has been made off Walsh during the year.

Since Sept. 30, when he went in cold to relieve White in the 10th inning and lost to Detroit, Walsh has won nine and lost three games, and in the three games he lost the Sox did not score any runs at all and only four hits in the whole three games. He was beaten by Cleveland, Sept. 15, by a score of 3 to 0. The Sox making three hits in the 10th inning, and the only run of the game being made on an error by Davis. He lost to Cleveland Oct. 2 by a score of 1 to 0, the Sox failing to get a man to first off Joes, and the only run being due to a wild throw by Ishell and a passed ball.

In six of Walsh's 15 defeats the White Sox have been shut out, giving him no chance to win. Twelve times he has blanked his opponents. Yet Walsh's name does not appear in the few hit contests often, as he has not held his opponents to less than three hits this year.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Football practice at the naval academy in Annapolis this week will be in special preparation for the Harvard game next Saturday. Notwithstanding the big score which the crimson players ran up on Springfield last Saturday, the friends of the navy team feel that it has an excellent chance to tie or defeat Harvard.

Coch Howard Gorgan found the practice of the Fordham squad anything but reassuring yesterday. Gorgan, the former Holy Cross man and Coffey are down with injuries that will certainly hinder their effectiveness in the Princeton game.

Williams has a play which caused some discussion among football men present Saturday. The leader in the tandem shot through the line ahead of the man carrying the ball. The latter followed and as soon as he had crossed the line of scrimmage made a forward play to the man ahead. The play netted about four yards in this particular case.

The comparative score man is at it again trying to get a line on the strength of Harvard and Yale through the Bowdoin and Holy Cross game. Harvard beat Bowdoin 5 to 0, Yale defeated Holy Cross 18 to 0, and Holy Cross defeated Bowdoin 12 to 6. From these scores he has Yale doped out considerably stronger than Harvard.

Holy Cross team went into secret practice Wednesday afternoon for tomorrow's game with Dartmouth.

Capt. Dick Crowther of Tech received an injury to his right knee Saturday that will keep him out of practice this week and possibly out of tomorrow's game in Springfield.

The Brown freshmen team which will play Worcester academy Saturday was defeated last Saturday by Villiston 17 to 0.

When Harvard rolled up 44 points against Springfield Saturday it came near being the first time in seven years a crimson eleven has jumped the 40 mark. In 1904 Brown was beaten 48 to 0.

Tad Jones, commenting on the playing of Murphy of Yale, a Westboro boy, at quarter against West Point, says: "He was all that could be desired. He knew his men and he found out for himself what plays would go. When the time came he drove his team fast, with confidence in its ability to do what he was calling upon it to do, and the result was a touchdown."

Brown yesterday began earnest preparations for Lafayette, which is expected to furnish the strongest home football game of the season. All of the men are in good condition except Dennis, left out. He was taken out of the game because of injuries to his leg, but he will be in fit condition to play against Lafayette. Coach Gammons is optimistic with regard to both Lafayette and Harvard games. He said today: "We were defeated, but are not downed and out. With an even break of luck against Penn. the score would have been nothing to nothing, at least."

That the Princeton-Dartmouth game Nov. 7 will be one of the most interesting of the year is the opinion of a great many followers of football, says Harry L. Dabman in the Boston Journal. This game means a lot to Dartmouth. If the Harvard boys win and Harvard beats Brown and the Indians, there will be a heap of interest in the game at the stadium Nov. 14 between Harvard and Dartmouth.

There has been a leak at Princeton, and Dartmouth might as well cancel her date at polo grounds Nov. 7. According to the New York World, it appears that one John W. McDonough of Pittsburgh has a son at Princeton. The elder Mr. McDonough has been staying at the Holland house, and recently received a letter written by the above-mentioned son which was intended for a chum of the Princetonian. By some oversight the letter was opened by the father and contained a most astounding bit of news. Here is an extract of what the Princeton student wrote to his chum, which information was divulged to the father:

"I'm in good luck. I have been elected to the polo club, the Y. M. C. A. and am a substitute on the football team, and we're going to beat hell out of Dartmouth."

Backers of the Dartmouth eleven will be glad to get this information so early, as it will save them a lot of money and give them an extra week to get ready for the Harvard game.

THE NEW CZAR OF THE BULGARIANS AND HIS PEOPLE

He Is Trying His Hand at the Solution of the Perplexing Balkan Problem.

AMONG all the moves which have been made recently on the European political checker-board the unexpected jump of Bulgaria into the king row has been most sensational. For many years this corner of southeastern Europe has been overshadowed by its mightier neighbors. To the busy world at large its exact geographical position has been a matter of more or less hazy indifference. That it was one of the Balkan states, a principality in the lower Danube region, has seemed until the present to be sufficient.

Now it is quite a different proposition. With a single bound this most inconsequential of nations has come to the front. But yesterday it was a mere Christian principality, its petty ruler a vassal of the sultan. Today it is a full fledged state, its sovereign the czar of the Bulgars.

It is but justice to these same Bulgars to admit that the world's past idea of them has been vastly different from their own. They have never been inclined to accept the world's estimate of them and their country. They are a people with a history, and they have always been insistent in their effort to live up to it. Precisely what it is no one seems to know, not even the Bulgars themselves. Some time in the fifth century, too long ago to be particular concerning the exact year, they forsook the wind swept steppes of Russia and settled in the scarcely less inhospitable region of the lower Danube. What they were before they lived in Russia no man knows positively. Ethnologists are divided in their opinions, some finding a Finnish origin for the Bulgars and others referring them to Tartar stock.

Principality of Recent Origin.

The principality is a matter of only thirty years. It is really a creation of the late Prince Bismarck, who had a decided taste for such work. For some time before that date Bulgaria had existed as the result of an agreement between Russia and Turkey called the treaty of San Stefano. This arrangement suited nobody, and Prince Bismarck saw an opportunity to use his diplomatic skill. So he invited representatives of the powers to go to Berlin and talk it over. That conference resulted in the famous treaty of Berlin, which gave something to almost everybody save those for whose benefit, presumably, it was intended. Austria was permitted to have virtual control over Bosnia and Herzegovina, Russia recovered the Bessarabian territory taken from her and given to Roumania by the treaty of Paris, Greece was given permission to extend her frontier, and England managed to appropriate Cyprus. It was only the Turk and the Bulgarian who were left out of the distribution. Turkey was plucked openly, and Bulgaria was made to give up eastern Roumelia, which she had previously wrested from the sultan with the explanation that she was only recovering stolen goods.

About the only thing Prince Bismarck and his diplomatic guests found suitable for Bulgaria was the principality. The Bulgars didn't want it, but in the end they accepted it with as good grace as they could muster and resolved to make the best of it. The Berlin adjusters made it an autonomous and tributary state under the suzerainty of the sultan, with a Christian government and a national militia. Its ruler was to be elected by the people and confirmed by the sultan, with the consent of the powers. The prince, however, must not be a member of any of the reigning houses identified with the conferring powers, and he must reside permanently in the principality.

"How permanently remains to be seen," observed a Bulgarian member of the assembly of notables when he read the draft of the treaty.

The masterful Bismarck was successful in his ambition to put a man of his own choosing at the head of the new Bulgarian principality. Prince Alexander of Battenberg was also the choice of the assembly of notables, and he was elected, greatly to the disgust of Russia, which had a favored candidate. At the time no one believed that the new ruler would remain at his post for a year or that he would be permitted to do so.

A Man of Initiative.

Alexander, however, proved to be neither a figurehead nor a catspaw. He had very well defined ideas of his own as to how his principality should be governed, and he proceeded to put them into operation. From the first he made it clear that he was not an agent of the czar or of the Austrian emperor. He entered into the scheme of national expansion with a readiness that made him very popular with the better classes among the Bulgarians. It was due to his manipulation that part of the territory of eastern Roumelia was restored to Bulgaria. Next he made war on Serbia and would have absorbed that kingdom but for the interference of Austria. He was altogether too devoted to Bulgarian interests to suit Russia, and the Muscovites began to plot to get rid of him. The czar's secret agents fomented a conspiracy. On the night of Aug. 21, 1886, Alexander was lured secretly into Russian territory and there forced to abdicate. A revolution followed, and the prince returned to Bulgaria. He remained in the principality less than a month. Everything was in a state of upheaval, and he once more sought asylum in Germany in disgust, leaving an abdication in the hands of his parliament.

Alexander left many friends in Bulgaria, some of them rich and powerful, who would have remained faithful to his interests, but he had had enough. He declined absolutely to take any step to recover his turbulent principality, and the Bulgarians were without a ruler.

In Search of a Ruler.

A deputation was sent in search of one. Practically all of the courts of Europe were visited, but there was a marked paucity of candidates for the ticklish position. With Alexander's experience fresh in mind, not even the most impoverished princeling in the German empire could be persuaded to try his hand at being prince of Bulgaria. At last the baffled deputation returned to Vienna with the forlorn hope that some one of the multitude of inconspicuous demi-royalties connected with the Austrian court might be "begged, borrowed or stolen."

The bowdlerized Bulgars found no man willing to take the risk. No budding son of royalty at the Austrian capital would listen to the proposition. Disheartened, the deputation prepared to return to Sofia empty handed. On the evening fixed for their departure, while waiting for the train which was to carry them over the frontier, the Bulgarian notables entered a beer garden and seated themselves at a table near the entrance. Here they were joined a little later by a Viennese nobleman who attempted to console for the failure of their mission. Presently a young man wearing the uniform of a lieutenant in his Austrian majesty's guards entered the garden and took a seat at the table nearest the prince hunters. The Viennese at the Bulgarian table and the newcomer exchanged bows, and then the former turned to the head of the deputation and began a spirited conversation in a low tone. Half an hour later the Bulgarians left the garden, but they did not go to the railway station. They went back to their hotel and to bed with newborn hope in their more or less honest hearts.

The next morning the deputation had an audience with the primo minister, and before night of the same day a telegram was sent to Sofia asking whether or no Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha would be acceptable as a candidate for ruler. The answer was, "Entirely so."

The prince, of course, was the young lieutenant of the beer garden. When he was consulted he surprised everybody by accepting the offer without a moment's hesitation. Prince Ferdinand was a notability in Vienna and an especial favorite of the emperor, who made much of him at court functions and liked to have him at the palace. He was twenty-seven years of age at the time and ready for any adventure. The Bulgarian offer appealed irresistibly to him and to his taste for political intrigue. The old emperor tried to dissuade him and was furious over his persistency, but Ferdinand was firm and was made prince ruler of Bulgaria at the ancient capital, Tirnovo.

Has Shown Himself to Be a Man of Nerve and Fit to Be the Leader of His People.

For once Bulgaria had met with rare good fortune. Her new ruler was one of the richest princes in Europe, and his aged mother, Princess Clementine, daughter of Louis Philippe, was a woman of colossal fortune. Bulgaria was impoverished, the result of her recent revolution and political misdoing of all sorts. In spite of her poverty the principality voted Ferdinand a salary of $250,000 a year, which he promptly returned to the treasury until the country became prosperous. With his own private resources he proceeded at once to put the principality on a sound financial footing, and with his own money and that of the Princess Clementine he undertook public improvement on a generous scale. The Bulgars realized from the start that they had drawn a prize and were properly appreciative. Ferdinand has never given them cause to regret that opportune visit to the Vienna beer garden.

He is a schemer and an active one. That of itself endears him to his people, especially when his personal ambition is so inseparable from the aggrandizement of the principality. He has never made a secret of his intention to restore Bulgaria to its old time dimensions, and he is perfectly willing it should exceed that convenient limit. Because he believed that he could achieve his ultimate design of becoming sovereign of a really worth while state through Russian co-operation he cultivated the czar with a zeal that led him into political extravagance, the climax of which was the "conversion" of his young heir, Prince Boris, to the Orthodox Russian church. Failing to accomplish his purpose even through this transparent maneuver, which must have been peculiarly distasteful to a man whose affiliations and traditions had always been Roman Catholic, Ferdinand did what he could to repair his apostasy and to conciliate his German relatives by wedding the amiable and mature Eleanor of Reuss. His first wife, the mother of his two sons and two daughters, was the Bourbon Princess Louise of Parma, who died after six years of married life in Bulgaria.

The new czar of the Bulgars has proved himself to be a man of deeds—first by securing and maintaining a firm hold on the affections of a race so different from his own; again, by a coup d'etat which promised to result greatly to the advantage of his people.

C. B. SANDERSON.

New Battleships of the Dreadnought Type

AT last Uncle Sam's navy is to have two monster fighting machines of the Dreadnought type—the North Dakota, soon to be launched at Fore River, Mass., and the Delaware, now under construction at Newport News, Va.

These great battleships, which are almost precisely alike, have a long forecastle deck extending from the bow almost to the center of the vessel. The ten twelve-inch guns are arranged in five turrets, two in a turret, the forward turret being so located that the axes of its guns are twenty-four feet above the water line. Just abaft this turret is another, the barbettes of which is of sufficient height for its guns to clear the roof of the forward turret. Aft the break of the forecastle deck, and also situated on the axis of the ship, are two more twelve inch gun turrets, and abaft and near the stern is the fifth and last of the big turrets.

Naval men are of the opinion that no navy in the world possesses a ship of the Dreadnought type in which the guns are arranged to better advantage. It is only recently that the full meaning of concentrated sea power seems to have been made clear to any nation. Until within the last few years the fleets of the great nations were scattered over the globe, and the force of sea power was lost in maintaining divided squadrons in different parts of the world. The political situation caused Great Britain to reshape its naval policy and to center its sea fighting strength in one powerful home fleet. At this time also there was a wild hurrah in Germany over the proposition of its "war lord" to build the biggest navy in the world. The country was already tax burdened, but the subsequent reichstag provided that the existing organization of the navy be raised from the standard of the 11,000 ton ship to that of 12,000. It replied the British admiralty loads threw 122 fighting ships, representing an outlay of $90,000,000, into the scrap heap and built a new navy of the King Edward type of ships, mounting four nine-inch guns in addition to the usual battery.

Coming of the Dreadnought.

The Teuton had been outwitted, but his sea power continued to expand, especially his merchant marine. Finally his insular maritime rival abandoned all conservatism and produced the Dreadnought. It was a fearful blow, for it made the highly vaunted German fleet a collection of second class ships. All the navies of the world were made vastly less efficient by its coming. That of Russia, broken into fragments by the Japanese, has never been restored even to its original strength. That of France has been brought to a state of almost absolute inefficiency by failure to keep up with the procession.

Italy and in America. It was the Italian Colonel Cuniberti who designed the Dreadnought and offered the plan to the admiralty of his own country. Unwilling to undertake the construction of such a costly type, the Italian government "turned it down." Cuniberti then gave his design to the world, and the British made use of it. In the same year that Cuniberti planned his big ship Lieutenant Pondstone laid before the United States naval department the plans of a large type of warship similar to the Dreadnought.

The Kaiser, however, was not inclined to abandon his ambition to become lord of the admiralty of the Atlantic. His reply to this latest defiance from his English rivals was seven Dreadnoughts, each with an armament of twelve eleven-inch guns, which are to be ready by 1912. This last stupendous effort to retain the supremacy will cost the Germans $100,000,000. As yet the empire has no docks big enough to accommodate these leviathans, and the Kiel waterway will have to be widened and made deeper.

Although the honor of the practical realization of the Dreadnought type of battleships belongs to England, it had been discussed previously both in Italy and in America. It was the Italian Colonel Cuniberti who designed the Dreadnought and offered the plan to the admiralty of his own country. Unwilling to undertake the construction of such a costly type, the Italian government "turned it down." Cuniberti then gave his design to the world, and the British made use of it. In the same year that Cuniberti planned his big ship Lieutenant Pondstone laid before the United States naval department the plans of a large type of warship similar to the Dreadnought.

This vessel was to be armed with twelve inch guns only. His plans were rejected. Revolution in Naval Methods. Smokeless powder and telescopic sights, together with the new gunnery methods, have revolutionized the laws of gun fire. The turret gun used to be a slow and cumbersome weapon. Its record during the Spanish war was one round every five minutes and no hits. Now it has become an instrument of great precision. Its rate of fire is now more than twice a minute. According to the naval experts, mobility of forces is the necessity of war. The greater the mobility the greater the chance of gaining a strategic advantage. The wonderful speed of these big ships, twenty-one knots, makes every other battleship not turbine driven a tortoise-like affair. In an action a fleet of Dreadnoughts might accept or decline battle, as suits its convenience. It could also choose its own range and control the rate of change of range. Although the tremendous power of concentration secured by the ten twelve-inch guns of a Dreadnought is the principal reason for the adoption of this new type by all the navies of the world, its cost is much less than four small battleships aggregating the same power. As to the question of maintenance, it costs no more to keep the big ship in commission than the small one. A million a year is about the expense of it. Strange as it may seem, it does not require so many oil-burners to man it. Fewer men are necessary to serve the ten guns of one of our new Dreadnoughts than are required for all the guns of the Mississippi. A nation with a perfect fleet of Dreadnoughts might preserve the peace of the world. In order to defy her on the high seas it would be necessary to excel her in point of numbers and in equipment. No naval armament of the usual type could withstand such a fleet. In combat with a fleet of the type that must soon go to the junk pile, even one of these new ships could inflict fearful destruction.

In combat such ships would conquer without wasting a single shot. Secure in the possession of impregnable armor, one of them could descend on her adversaries and with the concentrated fire of her ten hard hitting guns hammer the little ships to the point of surrender or speedy annihilation. Her perfect fire control would never permit a miss. Sweeping noiselessly across the sea, her pointers, following the enemy in her ten crosswings high above the waves and spray, would seek out the vulnerable point of the enemy and by continuous pounding would silence his heaviest guns.

In the battle of Tsushima, Russian naval prestige was wiped out in a single afternoon. Had the Japanese possessed a single Dreadnought the process of obliteration would have been less protracted—an hour and a half would have been quite long enough.

Preservers of Peace. Thus it is that the destinies of maritime nations seem to hang on these arm-brothers of the seas. The Hague has not yet been able to suggest anything more practical or more potent. The power of the Dreadnought is having its influence on the war lords of Europe. Little fresh water states may bluster and burn powder, but the great naval powers are not overanxious to assume the offensive.

On the South American continent Brazil is first to acknowledge the far-reaching influence of the Dreadnought and has already become the dominant force on account of the three great ships which she is having constructed. In spite of her poverty the little brown land of Japan are riveting and hammering day and night on the great guns which are to be the bulwarks of her coming national prestige. In 1901 the quaint flag of the mikado will fly over seven Dreadnoughts and nine pre-dreadnought cruisers. At that date Uncle Sam will have four ships of the highest efficiency and two others of the Michigan type—a sort of Dreadnought compromise. Great Britain will add eight improved Dreadnoughts to her navy and four cruisers, each carrying eight twelve-inch guns and with a speed of twenty-four knots. Italy has waked up and is building a 12,000 ton battleship. France, which once held second place among the world's naval powers, has dropped to fifth.

Dracut Juror Removed From the Panel

George C. Canney, chairman of the board of selectmen of Dracut, one of the jurymen at the present term of the superior court now being held here, was yesterday excused from further jury duty by Judge White. It is believed that the court's action was due to the complaint of the law and order league relative to alleged irregularities in regard to drawing names for jury service. As chairman of the board Mr. Canney took part in the drawing at which his own name was drawn and as chief of police it was his duty to investigate the qualifications of men drawn for jury duty. Mr. Canney's name was drawn both for the criminal and civil sessions and after serving on the criminal session in Cambridge he came to this city and sat upon the civil panel. The law states that a man drawn to serve on a jury shall not be liable to be drawn again within three years.

G. E. CONVENTION

Officers to be Elected Today

LYNN, Oct. 23.—This, the second day of the 20th convention of the Massachusetts Christian Endeavor union was the one of most interest to the hundreds of workers who came to Lynn for the deliberations. The day's program including the biennial business session at which officers for the coming two years were to be elected and a series of workers' conferences. While the formal opening occurred last night the convention business was not taken up until today.

The workers' conferences in the forenoon are a feature of each convention of the union. Men and women who have attained prominence by reason of their leadership in promoting the efforts of the society along its several lines of endeavor were appointed as directors of conferences in which they specialized and in this way the workers were able to shape more clearly their future teachings. Among those who led conferences today were William Shaw of Boston, secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor under whose direction Christian Endeavor efforts were discussed and Mrs. C. W. Kincaid of Worcester and Miss Amy Leacock of Beverly assisted by Miss Grace Young of the Vermont Union who led in a discussion of "Union Methods." All of these conferences were held in the First Presbyterian church where the day's meetings were opened with a quiet hour service conducted by Rev. Chas. H. Moss of Malden.

The biennial business session occupied the entire afternoon program. Officers reports, awards for "increase work," the election of officers and other routine matters composed the business which was scheduled for consideration.

MATRIMONIAL

Mrs. Elsie Gertrude Phelan, the composer, was married to Robert G. Larsen, formerly of Lowell, press representative for R. F. Keith, at the bride's home on Hall avenue, Somerville, yesterday, by the Rev. William Coudon, pastor of the First Universalist church of Somerville.

Mr. Larsen was active in Boston newspaper life for 15 years, beginning on the city staff of The Boston Herald and then being transferred to Lowell as the representative of the paper in this vicinity. He was publisher of the Boston Sunday Times when it was warm politically, and was a writer on financial topics for the Boston Financial News.

For five years he was the Boston representative of the New York Herald, during that time writing special dramatic and financial articles for the Boston Sunday papers. He was then made Sunday editor of The Boston Herald and two years ago abandoned the newspaper business and joined the Keith Proctor interests in New York. He was assigned to the Harlem Opera House and returned one year ago to the Keith interests here.

Miss Phelan, the daughter of Mrs. Gertrude E. Phelan of Cambridge, is a well known composer. She was born and brought up in Cambridge, only removing to Somerville within the past year. When but a school girl she displayed musical talent and while in high school many of her compositions were accepted by music publishers. Some of her marches, according to the musical critics, rival Sousa's.

Last winter Miss Phelan gave a series of concerts at Keith's for the benefit of the Chelsea sufferers, but decided not to go on with her concert career, but to devote all her time and talents to composing.

Immediately after the marriage the couple started on a week's honeymoon. Mr. Larsen's business necessitating his early return.

YOUNG DOCTOR

Killed Himself Rather Than Face Trial

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Rather than face a trial for manslaughter in the first degree, growing out of a case of alleged criminal practice, Dr. Irving J. Cook, a young doctor of this city, coolly drank a dose of a powerful poison and shot himself at the Waldorf hotel yesterday. His body was found soon after by hotel attendants.

The dead man left a sealed letter addressed to his wife, but accompanying it was a terse note in which he asked her "not to take this affair hard." He told her also in the note that he left her $447 and directed her attention to the sealed letter.

Dr. Cook was arrested Tuesday and held in $10,000 bail. He subsequently furnished bail and was released. He was to have been prosecuted for the death of a young woman at Summit, N. J., last summer.

627 EXECUTIONS

Took Place in Russia Last Year

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—The Reich prints today the official statistics of the executions in Russia during the year 1907 on sentences imposed by the military district courts. The total is 627, of which 54 were soldiers and 573 civilians. These figures are considerably below the earlier unofficial estimates which were based on the condemnations reported in press despatches.

According to the official classifications 63 persons or over 70 per cent were hanged or shot for murder and robbery, accompanied by violence; 62 men were executed for mutiny or other offences against military discipline; 51 for crimes against the state, and four for desertion. The balance is not specified. The Baltic provinces took the lead in the number of executions with 131. This was due to the final stamping out of the Insurrection. The Kiev region was next with 51 executions. Odessa counted 60, Warsaw 65 and Moscow 59.

NEW HAVEN ROAD

Objects to Trying Case Before Three Judges

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—Another step in the government suit against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, to prevent the road acquiring the stock of other lines, notably the Boston and Maine, was taken in the United States circuit court today when the New Haven company filed an objection to the government's request that the case be heard by not less than three judges. The New Haven company objects to the motion for the reason that three judges sitting as requested will not be an inferior court; that it is not competent for congress under the constitution to authorize the determination of a case as requested; that three judges in question have no jurisdiction; and that such action would constitute a transfer of jurisdiction in violation of all proper procedure.

FATALLY BURNED

PAPER CAP SET A GIRL'S HAIR ON FIRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—While playing in a cellar yesterday, Fannie Cappello, a 6-year-old school girl was so badly burned that she died after being removed to a hospital.

There were more than a dozen children in the party and they all wore big paper caps. Some of the children suggested that the furnace door should be opened, so as to throw some light upon the scene.

Fannie volunteered to open the door, and as she did so a sudden back draught sent a tongue of flame shooting out. It ignited the paper cap of the little queen and she ran screaming about the cellar with her hair and dress ablaze.

NON-SUPPORT CASES

Were Heard by Judge Hadley in Police Court Today

William E. La Fay, who claims East Boston as his home and who it is alleged has been working a film game in this city of late, was arrested last night by Inspector Walsh and Patrolman John Conway. It is charged that he worked a clerk in a Gorham street drug store and Edward Quirbach, the well-known Gorham street cigar dealer.

La Fay's game was to go into a store and make a five-cent purchase, tendering a half dollar to the clerk. The chances were that the clerk would hand him a quarter of a dollar and a couple of dimes in return. Just as the bunco man reached the door he would turn the quarter over to his partner who was waiting on the outside and hastily returning would show that he had but twenty cents and put up the claim that he had been short changed. In many instances he succeeded in making twenty cents on the transaction.

La Fay was arraigned in court this morning and entered a plea of not guilty to two complaints charging him with the larceny of twenty cents from James O'Day, a clerk in a Gorham street drug store and Edward Quirbach.

O'Day testified that La Fay went into his place and made a five-cent purchase and presented a fifty-cent piece. Witness said that he gave La Fay a quarter and two dimes. La Fay walked towards the door and came back and asked if a mistake had not been made in the change. La Fay had two dimes in his hand and a five-cent piece. O'Day thinking that he might have made an error in the change took the five-cent piece back and gave him a quarter.

Quirbach was worked in the same manner. La Fay testified that he came to this city in search of work. He was accompanied by another young man from Lynn. The pair tossed up a coin to see who would pay for cigars and the friend lost. The friend produced the fifty-cent piece in the first instance and he put up the money in the second. When the man from Lynn was placed on the stand he denied ever having given the defendant any money.

La Fay said that he belonged in East Boston, where he has a wife and child.

He was found guilty but the case was continued for a few days in order that something might be learned of his history and also to learn if he was telling the truth.

Must Support Child

Charles H. Baldwin was brought into court by Agent Richardson of the Humane society and entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint charging him with the non-support of his minor child, who is at the O'Leary home on Kirk street. He made an excuse that he had been drinking, but promised to do better in the future. He was placed in the hands of the probation officer with the understanding that he would contribute weekly to the support of his child.

The Drunks

Thomas J. Lirane, a second offender, was assessed $5.
Louis Gardner, a second offender, was also fined $5.
There were three first offenders, who were fined $2 each.

Non-Support Case

Arthur Beland was charged with failing to provide support for his wife, Elizabeth.

Mrs. Beland testified that she is 19 years of age and the mother of two children and said that for the past two years he had not given her any support and that when she asked for money for herself and the children he told her to go to work and earn it.

Beland said he was willing to take his wife back and do what was right, but Mrs. Beland said she would not go back to her husband because she was afraid of him.

The court ordered Beland to pay $3 weekly for the support of his family.

"Barney" McLaughlin

Bernard F. McLaughlin, better known as "Barney" and one of the best ball players who ever handled the sphere in this vicinity made his first appearance before the court this morning.

"Barney" walked into the police station last night and asked for lodging. In court this morning he was charged with being drunk, but pleaded for leniency, claiming that he had work to go to. The court continued the case for one week with the understanding that he would be placed on probation if he abstained from liquor and went to work.

Assault and Battery

A rather interesting case which was based on technicalities and statute laws was aired before Judge Hadley in police court this morning. It being the case of Thomas A. Collins, charged with assault and battery on Charles A. Gallagher, a conductor on the Moody street line of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co., and the use of profane language on a public conveyance.

According to the testimony offered, Collins boarded the car and tendered a Canadian five-cent piece to the conductor. The latter refused to accept it and Collins said he would pay the conductor later. That was acceptable to the conductor and at a later date Collins did make restitution.

It was further stated that Conductor Gallagher made an impertinent remark to a number of passengers about Collins having paid the fare which he owed and this caused Collins to resent it and as a result of the language used Gallagher ordered Collins off the car, and with the assistance of the motorman Collins was ejected, but not before he had a scrimmage with Gallagher, in which the latter sustained a cut over the right eye which necessitated the taking of three stitches.

Gardner W. Pearson appeared for the defendant and the government was represented by Larkin T. Trull.

Judge Hadley spoke in reprimand of the manner in which the conductor had circulated the information that the defendant owed money, but also said that the defendant had no right to either assault the conductor or use profane language. He then found Collins guilty on both counts, imposing a fine of $3 for assault and battery and $5 for profanity. The cases were appealed and Collins was held under $100 bonds for the superior court.

GRAFT CHARGED

Relatives of Roosevelt and Taft Accused

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Charges that a brother-in-law of President Roosevelt and a brother of Candidate Taft were involved in the wholesale gobbling of Panama Canal shares were made by Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois yesterday.

He announced through the headquarters of the democratic national committee, that on the opening day of congress in December he will introduce a resolution calling for an investigation of the Panama canal purchase.

In discussing the matter Representative Rainey said:

"I am sorry the president's letter to Senator Knox did not take up the matter of the Panama canal purchase. The president ought to be able to tell whether or not his brother-in-law and the brother of the republican candidate for the presidency were interested in an American syndicate, which it is said, succeeded in getting control of the securities of the Panama Canal company just before the Nicaraguan route was abandoned and a Panama route adopted.

"The president ought to be in a position to know who the members of the American syndicate are. The country is entitled to know all about it, and I intend to see that it is made public.

"As soon as congress convenes in December I will introduce a resolution, asking for the appointment of a special committee fully authorized to summon witnesses and require the publication of books and papers to thoroughly investigate the matter."

"A resolution of this character would be privileged. I expect to make it my principal business in congress that this matter is thoroughly investigated."

THE KAISER

IS SHOWING GREAT ATTENTION TO AMBASSADOR HILL

BERLIN, Oct. 22.—Emperor William has attracted the attention of the diplomatic corps by his recent attentions to David J. Hill, the American ambassador. It is probable that his majesty aimed to remove all doubts, if any existed, regarding Mr. Hill's welcome to the German court.

At the wedding yesterday of Prince August William and Princess Alexandra the emperor was particularly cordial to Mr. Hill and at the Gala Opera performance last Wednesday night the emperor asked that Mr. Hill come to him and then spoke with the ambassador for some time. The same evening Prince Henry sought out Mr. Hill and talked with him about their experiences in America together.

BADLY INJURED GREEN APPLES GREAT MERGER

Springfield Man Pinned Beneath Auto

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 23.—In a sensational automobile accident at Greenville, eight miles outside of this city, last evening, C. E. Alonzo Cameron of Springfield, Mass., was severely injured, and H. T. Bowles, P. H. Moore and W. F. Cook, also prominent citizens of that city, narrowly escaped death.

Mr. Moore and Mr. Cook were hurled 15 feet into a churchyard, and Mr. Cameron was pinned under the car, while his chauffeur, H. G. French, and Mr. Bowles were thrown into the road.

The party were trying out a new car owned by Mr. Cameron, an automobile merchant, and which Mr. Bowles was contemplating purchasing.

They came down a hill, just before entering the village of Greenville, at a rapid rate. Cameron, Moore and Cook were in the tonneau. The chauffeur evidently miscalculated his distance and the car shot forward in the direction of the church. Before French could reverse or turn the automobile it had plunged into a small ditch bordering the church fence.

The car toppled over. Moore and Cook flew through the air and landed in the churchyard. Bowles and the chauffeur were thrown into the roadbed and Cameron was pinned under the car.

BURNED TO DEATH

While Trying to Save Horses

BROOKLINE, Oct. 23.—Everest Quimet, 66 years of age, and for more than half his life a coachman for the Goddard family of this town, was burned to death today in an effort to save some of his beloved horses from a burning barn. Quimet heard the shrieks of the animals in the stable and rushed in to loosen them, but was overcome by smoke and perished in the fire which destroyed the building. Mrs. Quimet tried to prevent her husband from going into the barn, but he broke away.

Caused the Discharge of U. S. Soldier

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Because he ate green apples after repeated instructions from his superior officer not to do so, Private Bernard Leiser of Battery D, third field artillery, U. S. A., has been dishonorably discharged from the service and sentenced to forfeit all pay and allowances due him and to be confined at hard labor for six months. The verdict of the court-martial which considered the charge against Leiser found him guilty and imposed sentence, was announced from army headquarters here today. The specific charge was "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline in violation of the sixty-second article of war." It was found that Leiser ate green apples after having received a lawful order from a sergeant to throw them away. Leiser will serve his sentence at Fort Wayne, Va.

COURT PLASTER

TEACHER PUT IT ON BOY'S LIPS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 23.—To curb the too pronounced conversational propensities of a small pupil, Miss Edith Wirt, a school teacher, adopted an original method and there by brought trouble down upon her head.

She stuck court plaster upon the lips of 9-year-old Harvey Galloway, and thereby stopped his talk temporarily, but her disciplinary art raised a riot of protest and Miss Wirt was arrested.

She was charged with cruelty, but yesterday the prosecuting attorney dismissed the case.

Miss Wirt is still teaching school, but Harvey isn't one of her pupils any more. He has been taken out of school by his parents and now converses as much as he wishes, under the supervision of his mother and her mother.

Of All Denver & Rio Grande Roads

DENVER, Oct. 23.—The merger of all the lines of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad was made effective today by the filing of a mortgage for $150,000,000. This mortgage secures a new issue of bonds. The sum of $50,000,000 will be used for refunding outstanding indebtedness; $25,000,000 to aid in the construction of the Western Pacific railroad now building from Salt Lake to the Pacific and the remainder for extension of old and construction of new lines.

Coincident with the filing of the mortgage came the denial of the report that E. H. Harriman would assume control of the West Pacific road.

BANDIT FLED

SHOT JEWELLER AFTER GRABBING DIAMONDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—A bandit in a taxicab nearly murdered Maurice Tannenholzer, a Lexington avenue jeweller, last night and got away in his machine with a handful of valuable diamonds.

Entering the store, the stranger presented a letter purporting to be from President Andrews of the United States Savings bank, stating that the bearer had $20,000 to invest in gems.

The jeweller was displaying his wares when the bandit grabbed some earrings from a tray and ran out, knocking down the jeweller's mother in his flight. The robber, being pursued, fired twice at Tannenholzer, wounding him perhaps fatally. Then jumping down into his taxicab the unknown escaped at high speed.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

A very pleasant surprise party was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Savage, of 22 Butler avenue, it being the twelfth anniversary of the birth of their daughter, Madeline. Though very much surprised, little Miss Savage responded heartily to her many friends who presented her with a very dainty locket and chain. Master William Gilbride presented it to the hostess in behalf of her friends. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed and refreshments served, and a very pleasing musical closed the happy affair.

This is by far the largest net average circulation of any newspaper in Lowell.

By all means let us name a school for Frederick Fanning Ayer. He does not reside in Lowell, but he is, nevertheless, Lowell's greatest benefactor.

If we had a few mud-slinging newspapers on the square it might not be necessary for Supt. Morse to erect a mud-slinging machine in front of The Sun office.

PUBLIC PLAY-GROUNDS AND PLAY-FARMS.

In the city of Washington the system of public play-grounds for children has recently undergone a considerable development in the direction of "play-farm" and large school gardens. The department of agriculture has placed at the disposal of the school department a number of acres of arable land to be cultivated by the school children. Children of the sixth grade are assigned plots, and it is reported that during the past summer the crop of vegetables was abundant. This feature is conducted as a sort of manual training for the children, and it affords instruction that the children may turn to practical account in after years. The reports from the Washington play-farms are such as to assure the adoption of the idea in other parts of the country.

It is certainly a healthful and instructive form of manual training because the work is done with a will in the open air and under favorable conditions. Many of the children that cultivate plots in the school gardens or play farms usually find room to plant a garden at or near their homes, thus getting ample opportunity for healthful exercise and nature study that will not be forgotten.

In this connection we may cite what Judge Lindsay says on the general subject of "Play vs. Crime." Referring to this subject he says:

"In dealing with the problem of crime in youth, we shall make progress just in proportion as we appreciate the absurdity of limiting our remedies to the court, the hangman and the jailer.

"Our plea for public playgrounds is a plea for justice to the boy. We are literally crowding him off the earth. We have no right to deny him his heritage, but that is just what we are doing in nearly every large city in this country, and he is hitting back, and hitting hard, when he does not mean to, while we vaguely understand and stupidly punish him for crime. Why shouldn't he rebel? The amazing thing is that he is not worse than he is."

As Judge Lindsay is an authority on such matters his opinion will undoubtedly have due weight. He has been a great factor in promoting the play-ground idea throughout this country.

THE PRESIDENT'S ONSLAUGHT.

Again has President Roosevelt broken out in a fierce attack upon the opponents of the republican candidate, Mr. Taft. He asks if Mr. Bryan agrees with the radical position taken by Mr. Gompers on the injunction question.

There is very little doubt that Mr. Gompers, being involved in a contempt case, has gone too far and thus placed Mr. Bryan in an embarrassing position.

The president's letter is written ostensibly in reply to the speech of Senator Knox, formerly United States attorney general; but a strange thing in regard to this letter of October 21st is, that it was issued to the press before October 20th, the date on which the speech to which it refers was delivered. The president, of course, may have seen the advance copy of the speech.

It appears, therefore, that the speech and the letter combined constitute a concerted attack, designed, directed and partly made by the president himself. It is, no doubt, one of a series of onslaughts to be made upon the democratic candidate in a herculean effort to stem the tide that seems to be setting against the republican party. Whether it will succeed will depend in some degree on Mr. Bryan's reply.

The democratic candidate stands upon the party platform on the injunction and other questions, and if Mr. Gompers in his speeches overstepped the scope of that plank, there is no reason for holding Mr. Bryan responsible for his utterances, much less for charging that Gompers speaks with Bryan's authority. The whole attack is an ingenious scheme to turn attention from the panic, from the intimidation of labor and from the secrecy with which republican campaign funds are guarded and to rivet it upon what is represented as a democratic attempt to destroy the power of the courts, a matter that is wholly impossible because unconstitutional. The injunction plank of the democratic platform is not very extreme, its most radical provision in favor of labor being as follows:

Questions of judicial practice have arisen especially in connection with industrial disputes. We deem that the parties to all judicial proceedings should be treated with rigid impartiality, and that injunctions should not be issued in any cases in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved.

SEEN AND HEARD

HOPE.

We speak with the lip and dream in the soul,
Of some better and fairer day;
And our days the meanwhile to that golden goal
Are gliding and sliding away.
Now, the world becomes old, now again it is young,
But "The Better" is forever the word on the tongue.

At the threshold of life Hope leads us in—
Hope plays round the mirthful boy;
Though the best of its charms may with youth begin,
Yet for age it reserves its toy.
When we sink at the grave, why, the grave has scope,
And over the coffin man planteth—
Hope!

And it is not a dream of a fancy proud,
With a fool for its dull begueter;
There's a voice at the heart that proclaims aloud—
"Ye were born to possess the Better!"
And that voice of heaven, O ye may believe,
Will never the Hope of the soul deceive.
—Translated from the German of Schiller

At a recent church wedding a well known street car conductor was among the ushers. It was his duty as well as that of the other ushers, of course, to escort the guests to seats. A lady came in and very properly he offered her his arm, and proceeded down the aisle. After seating her he apparently forgot his surroundings and reached into the air as if to ring in a far-off bell. The act was observed by several of his acquaintances who have passed the story along.

The following from the Manchester Union will be of interest to the friends of Rev. Charles L. Merriam in this city:

The Rev. Charles L. Merriam, and his parishioners of the Central Congregational church in Derry Village have made arrangements for a grand organ concert at that church Thursday evening. The affair will be the first of the kind since the new memorial pipe organ has been placed in the church. The well-known organist of greater Boston, John Young, will be the attraction. Other features will be appreciated. This organ is one of the finest in town and as it has been placed in the church only a short time, it has never been heard by many in town. This will afford them a good opportunity.

The spicers are very much in evidence in the dance halls and it would seem that the age of some is within the limit of the curfew bell.

There is one thief who will not down. He is the fruit thief, and with the exception of the clothes line thief, the meanest specimen of the night or very early morning and he doesn't care any more for a policeman than he does for a little yellow dog. We are in receipt of complaints from raisers of fruit and they declare that they have been literally robbed by fruit thieves, especially apple thieves.

A book entitled "The Candidates and the Issues" or "The Voters' Hand Book" gives the platforms and principles together with the lists of candidates of every party in the political field. It is a valuable work for reference. It has a vast amount of information bearing upon elections, citizenship and the standing of the various parties. It has also fine pictures of the candidates with some historic facts of interest.

TO THE FLOOR

Here's to the floor,
Our best friend of all,
Who sticks to us close,
In the time of our fall.

When benches are fickle,
And tables betray,
And rugs are revolting,
He meets us half-way.

Our stay and support,
When we can't stand alone,
With the floor for a backer,
We'll never be thrown.

Here's to our best friend,
In life's every stage!
Dry nurse of infancy,
Wet nurse of age!

A health to our floor!
Supporter and stay,
Though he often be full,
May he never give way!

CHELMSFORD

Town Treasurer E. W. Sweetser, recently waged John P. Eaton, that Chelmsford had 140 miles of roadway. Mr. Eaton, who had looked the town over from the summit of Robin's Hill, wagged that the town treasurer's figure was too high and he was right. The supper has not been pulled off as yet.

AYER

The democratic campaign was opened in the town of Ayer last evening with a smoke talk in the lower town hall with a large attendance. John J. Mitchell of Marlboro, candidate for congress and James Smith of Littleton, candidate for representative were the principal speakers. F. J. Donlan, chairman of the town committee, president and J. P. Fisher of Westford, E. Morse of Marlboro, and J. B. O'Connell, T. P. Mullin, and F. J. Maloney of Ayer also addressed the meeting.

BIG HURRICANE

Did Great Damage in Nicaragua

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—The United Fruit company's steamer Urabessa arrived here last night in a badly battered condition, sixty hours overdue, having spent fifty-two hours in a hurricane in the Caribbean, which began last Friday. The steamer's engines gave out in the height of the storm, but they were repaired and disaster averted.

Captain Larsen says that he sighted two pieces of a white yacht boat. He fears much damage was done on the coast of Nicaragua, as the sky was filled with flocks of land birds. Bluebirds were in the direct path of the storm and many of the islands were swept. There are wireless stations at Bluefields and Corn Island, but they have not been heard from since the storm.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

At the festa in Florence, Italy, held in the week of Oct. 15, each year, in celebration of the anniversary of the birth of Evangelista Torricelli, Robert Mason Winthrop, formerly of Boston, and a member of several Boston clubs, is representing Harvard. He was a member of the class of 1895, and in his secretary of the American embassy in Rome. He is now an attaché of the United States legation at Brussels. This year is the 300th anniversary of Torricelli's birth.

Kate Barnard, who is said to occupy the same position in Oklahoma that Jane Addams does in Illinois, is 27 years old, was born in Nebraska, and very early had to depend on herself for her mother died while she was a child, and she lived here and there sometimes at home and as often not. Her first public work was taking charge of the Oklahoma state exhibit at the St. Louis exposition. Her next step was the organization of a charitable association for the many people who needed work at home. To quote from the Woman's Journal:

"She early identified herself with the American Federation of Labor, has been given seats on its local council, and has been made a delegate to its state convention. Through her efforts the wage scale for work in the Oklahoma city streets has been raised from $1.25 to $2.25 a day. She is also working with the first a republican and the first a democrat."

Her special object has been to secure the enactment in the new state constitution of compulsory education and anti-child labor provisions. At the request of Jesse Dunn, chairman of the state democratic committee, she wrote six of the 24 planks of the democratic platform, all of which have been accepted and adopted. Largely through her personal influence and wonderful oratorical ability, Oklahoma, originally supposed republican, has become overwhelmingly democratic. She has been made state commissioner of charities and correction. She is now planning to bring Judge Ben B. Lindsey from Denver, Col., to advocate juvenile courts before the legislature.

Samuel J. Barrows from New York, to advise the president of the American Association of University Professors, to submit a plan for treatment of the feeble-minded, and Hastings H. Hart from Chicago, to urge homes for orphan children.

A society that sends out reading matter on a large scale is the "Church Periodical Club," which has its headquarters in New York. Mrs. Mortimer Farge began sending out periodicals some seventeen years ago, and then started a club to carry on the work systematically. Soon the club was sending books, clergymen, Sunday schools and reading lessons out of the way places. Poor students who lacked text books, children who needed school books, kindergarten literature for teachers who had no material and reading matter to fill, hospitals, lightships, life saving stations, sailors, miners, and others, were either too poor or too out of the way to get reading. Within the year 20 barrels of books and magazines have been dispatched to logging camps, even people in Alaska have profited by traveling libraries, each holding from 50 to 60 volumes, to be kept from three to six months in a settlement, each person paying the traveling expenses. When the club was three years old a young minister asked for reading matter for those confined in the penitentiary at Mountville, W. Va. There are 1500 prisoners in the place, among them some women. One of them, violent in her enforced confinement was most troublesome and constantly smashed dishes and cutlery to bits. One of them, violent in her enforced confinement was most troublesome and constantly smashed dishes and cutlery to bits.

Before the church periodical club began its work in this prison there had been a "glutton table" where convicts ate like wild animals. No such table is needed now. The cruel back and gag punishment existed. It has become obsolete. Cells are clean, orderly and lighted by electricity, instead of by evil smelling lamps. Most of the men now have some enjoyment, and the "idle room" no longer contains stretched beings huddled together, but lines of leaders enjoying periodicals and books or taking lessons in reading and writing from a boy of 15 years old. They have an incentive to read and write. So dearly do these men love the picture cards and calendars sent them that they will often almost exclude necessary air and light in their cells by hanging these over their little windows. Each day they will joyfully scratch off a date on the calendar. That means one day nearer freedom. When these convicts learned that Mrs. Chapin was trying to raise a building fund for club headquarters, although they can earn only a penny or two a day by working overtime, they made up a collection of $22.50 and sent it to her.

Others besides prisoners benefited. Theological libraries for poor ministers, schools, Sunday schools and day schools, are supplied. Calendars, pictures, dance music, trimmings for Christmas trees, something for every need is sent by the "Church Periodical Club." And the libraries go beyond seas to Greece, Africa, Asia, South Sea Islands, Alaska, Labrador, and elsewhere.

SCENE IN "FIFTY MILES FROM BOSTON."

LOWELL FAVORITE

In Cast of "Sky Farm" at Opera House

Only three more performances of "Sky Farm," the beautiful pastoral drama remained to be played at the Lowell Opera House and those who have not witnessed a performance of this sterling attraction should avail themselves of the closing opportunity. Lowell theatre-goers will be interested to learn that Mr. Charles Stevens, a prime Lowell favorite formerly with the Academy of Music stock company, and one of the best "heavy" men in the stock world is playing a prominent part in "Sky Farm" while Mr. James McKeon, manager of the company is also well known in this city and is a native of Lynn. The play is finely staged and the cast strong and well balanced.

FIFTY MILES FROM BOSTON.

The attraction at the Opera House on Monday, Oct. 23, will be George M. Cohan's big rural musical comedy, "Fifty Miles from Boston," with dainty Miss Hazel Levy at the head of the big company.

Miss Golden appears as the demure New England postmistress, whose love affairs furnish the chief gossip for the village ladies. It is said that Mr. Cohan has given to this character some of his brightest lines and best songs. "The Jack and Jill" number being especially praised by the critics.

The veteran fun maker, John Sparks, who is the leading comedian, is said to have the "hit" of his life in the role of "Harrigan," and his singing of the famous "Harrigan" song is said to bring him uproarious applause.

Clever Beatrice Golden has been engaged for a prominent role, that of the village gossip, and she has a typical Cohan song, "Ain't It Awful," which is said to be exceptionally good.

Other good people in the cast are William, Bentley, Maurice Briere, Dan Bismarck, George Dedmon, Louis Hoon, Frank Darlen, May Maurice, Louise Carter, Charlotte Gray and Beatrice Harris. The musical numbers are said to be unusually interspersed throughout the story of the play and to be the "catchy" Cohan brand. They include "Harrigan," "My Small Town Gal," "Waltz with Me," "Boys Who Fight the Flames," "Jack and Jill" and "Ain't It Awful."

The story of the play is said to be brimful of good, clean fun and the day humor, for which New England is famous, is carried through all the plot, which centres around the love affairs of the postmistress and the "catchy" boy from Harvard, who is the hero of the baseball team.

Everybody is said to be in the picture—everybody has something to do, do more, little things here and there, from the regent owner of the solitary department store, the gossip women of the "Ladies Aid" and the nestleous small boy of the village.

MRS. WIGGS

Seats will go on sale Tuesday morning for the engagement of Lieber & Co.'s production of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the play which scored such a decided success at Terry's theatre in London recently, and which has been playing to packed houses throughout the United States or the past five seasons. The mere announcement of the coming of this play, with its coterie of quaint characters, and the necessity to insure enormous patronage.

JAPPYLAND

Funful among the more haunting of the tales with which the coming of the musical comedy, "Jappyland," abounds, none will appeal more pleasingly to music-lovers than the charming love song, "If You Want to Steal a Kiss—Why Don't You?" one of the big hits in "The Top of the World," during the past season at the New York Casino. A double sextet will appear in this number, costumed as "Beaux and Belles" at a fashionable watering place, and execute one of the prettiest terpsichorean conceits ever arranged for the stage. The following compose the cast: Leads, Miss Dorothy Hurd, Mr. Harry Brown; dancers, Misses Marion E. Lee, Etta Phillips, Helen Tackassoy, Mary Jacques, Helen Jacques; Messrs. Felix C. Rume, William Connell, Alan Eylelet, Ralph Canney, Francis Leighton.

The committee of local ladies back of the big production are having the most encouraging success in the sale of exchange tickets, and all indications point to a record-breaking advance sale when the box office opens at the Opera House next Monday morning.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC

Miss Della Deshon, the clever and charming leading lady of the Deshon-Titt Stock company now presenting "The Two Faces" at the Academy of Music, has made the hit of her career in the role of "Cigarette," the dashing little vicereine of the French army. The part is particularly exciting, for it requires delicate light comedy and strong emotional acting, at both of which Miss Deshon has proven to be an expert. Her friends were both surprised and charmed to see her in the role of a graceful dancer in the second act, where she entertains the boys in the barracks room with a delightful little dance. She is ably supported by Victor Brown in the role of Berkeley Cecil, afterwards known as Corporal Cecil, and the remaining members of the company. This afternoon, at the conclusion of the matinee, the members of the company will hold a reception on the stage, at which they will be pleased to meet and chat with all present. These receptions are most pleasant little affairs for they bring the members of the company and the patrons of the theatre closer together, and the latter have found the former to be quite as entertaining in private life as in their work. Tonight the amateurs will hold forth again after the regular evening performance, and these who have never witnessed an amateur night at the Academy of Music should not miss it. Those who have, need no suggestion to attend again.

HATHAWAY'S THEATRE

What would you do if you should suddenly be confronted by a burglar in your own home? Would you collapse through fear, or would you fight, or would you do as Jessie Couthout does in her wonderfully interesting monologue sketch, "1140 p. m.," which is being presented at Hathaway's theatre this week? You, in all probability, wouldn't, but it's kind of nice to know how she did put the grin, bad man to rout. Miss Couthout gives a remarkable sketch, primed full of bright lines and a telling situation. Don't miss it.

The remainder of the bill is far above the average. Amy Anderson, known on the English stage as "the banana queen," appears with a large company in a thoroughly funny sketch that gets a lot of applause and laughter at every performance. "The Advance Agent" is a topical melodrama, and the original blackboard quartet, contribute harmonies and fun. Yamamoto brothers are the best slack wire performers we have ever had here, and Gus Williams, delicate with his drollery and good dialect. The three Harlons, who open the bill, are unusually good. The Hathaway holds interesting films, and the evening performance will be given every afternoon and evening during the remainder of the week, with a special matinee Saturday.

STAR THEATRE

Beginning Monday, Oct. 26th, this house will present the up-to-date talking pictures. Pictures that actually talk are an immense success in all of the large cities at the present time.

The performance of John Mack, black-faced comedian, keeps his audience laughing from start to finish. His popularity is unquestioned and he is an old Lowell favorite.

The songs "O You Kid" and "In the Light of the Same Old Moon" have made a big hit for new songs. They are exceedingly catchy, and the audience quickly takes up the refrain.

FUNNYLAND

The baseball fans of Lowell are familiar with the games in the Detroit-Chicago championship series through the full reports printed in The Sun and through its unexcelled bulletin service. Messrs. Hennessy and Bunker, the owners of Funnyland, have secured and are now showing in that theatre a motion picture of one of these games, and it is really a most interesting one to the baseball fan. The picture was taken in Chicago on Sunday, Oct. 11, and shows many of the most interesting details of the game played that day, which resulted in a victory for the Cubs by a score of 6 to 1. It was in this game that "Wild Bill" Donovan of Detroit was pitted against Overall, and with the exception of the delightfully funny bit, the Chicago balance at his mercy. In that inning, the most interesting points are shown in the picture, Chicago batted the ball all over the lot and won the game then and there.

The first section of the picture is devoted to picturing three teams, Pittsburgh National, Chicago National and Detroit, preparing to play. All of the stars of these teams are full, and show practically every man of both teams at bat. The home run by Tinker, which broke up the game, is shown, and the camera follows the slugger around the bases. Part of the pictures are taken from a position near the home plate and the work of the battery, batter, shortstop and third baseman are easily seen. Others are taken from an elevation giving a bird's eye view of the diamond. The pictures are remarkably clear and give one a very good idea of the kind of ball that was played in this series.

The pictures of the game proper are

"Myself--Bettina"
Is Poorly Written.
"Agnes" a Failure

Maxine Elliott as Salome

A New Cohan Hit

"The American Idea," Musical
Comedy Success

(From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.)

MAXINE ELLIOTT is making a noise like a Salome in her new play, "Myself--Bettina," at Daly's theater—that is, the stunning ex-wife of ex-actor Nat Goodwin does a brief sketch of Herod's daughter as she believes her to have appeared, and, then, much to the disappointment of the audience, the more conventional story of the play resumes. Rachel Crothers, who became a popular play maker through the success of "The Three of Us," wrote the play, and she probably now regrets that she did. The play, while it was a fair success on tour, according to reports, does not meet the favor of the metropolitan critics, who classify the drama as one that succeeds in almost entirely covering up the merits of Miss Elliott's acting and her personality. Of course not even a poor play can conceal Miss Elliott's well known beauty.

Mediocrity's Dismal Swamp.
The fact that "Myself--Bettina" is largely an adaptation of the story of "Heimath," or, as known in English, "Magda," need not necessarily condemn the play provided the apparent abstractions be treated in an original manner, for where is the modern play that is absolutely the writer's own? But Miss Crothers in a vain effort to combine her meed of originality with that of the German author of "Magda" loses herself in the dismal swamp of mediocrity already overcrowded, and Miss Elliott's managers alone are to blame.

The company acts the characters excellently. Miss Elliott shines in her own radiance, and Eric Maturin, Julian L'Estrange, Grant Mitchell, Lols Frances Clark, Viola Portesque and Gertrude Berkeley contribute smaller quantities of the same elusive element.

What the Play Relates.

The story of "Myself--Bettina" reveals our new Magda as Bettina Dean (Miss Elliott), who has just come home to New England from Paris. She has discovered there that she has a voice that means her success as a singer. She had been in love with a minister in her own town during her three years in Paris. When the minister finds Bettina rehearsing a Salome dance he is deeply shocked and summarily orders her into his study to lecture her.

Bettina, enraged, now decides to go to a village dance which she has previously agreed not to attend, such things being held as sinful in the community. She accepts as escort the minister's young brother, who has been flirting desperately with her and who makes violent love to her.

This love-making occurs over a hurried piece of pumpkin pie, sneaked from the pantry by the young brother after he and Bettina have returned from the dance in the early morning hours. It is overheard by Bettina's sister, who has announced earlier in the play that she is married to the young brother in the sight of God, or words to that effect, and who, being discovered weeping by Bettina, promptly confesses her fault.

Eventually the young clergyman insists that his brother must marry the girl, but Bettina after some argument proves to him that such a marriage would simply mean unhappiness for them both, that it has no genuine moral foundation and that the two young people must be left to work out their own salvation.

As for herself, she is quite content to give up her ambition and marry the clergyman, with a view possibly of trying to convince him of the superiority of life in Paris.

New Cohan Hit.

George M. Cohan has opened at the New York theater with a new play, "The American Idea," which is one of the best he has written and is as big a success as "Little Johnny Jones," although Mr. Cohan himself is not in the cast. "The American Idea" is full of catchy music and various topical songs which will speedily become popular. Mr. Cohan takes two rival Brooklyn merchants to Paris who are anxious to marry their daughters to a title so that one will outshine the other in Brooklyn society. A bogus count is palmed off on both of the unsuspecting Brooklynites, but before the marriages are consummated the plot is discovered. George Moran as the bogus count was at his best, earning several good laughs from the audience.

Robert L. Dalley, brother to the late Peter L. Dalley, appeared in the important role of Stephen Rushford, the man who provided the rival Brooklynites with husbands for their daughters. Rosie Green and Certe Vanderbilt carried off the dancing honors of the play. "The Gendarmes" was a clever bit of pantomime. Trixie Friganza, in excellent spirits, appeared in the role of Mrs. Waxtapper. Miss Friganza was her jolly self all the time, and her song "Pet Names" was one of the musical hits of the evening and won a warm welcome on this her return to Broadway. Walter Le Roy had a good song in "Sullivan," and Mr. Dalley's two songs, "American Ragtime" and "Too Long From Long Ago Square," were well received.

Nance O'Neil in "Agnes."

Nance O'Neil has appeared in the majestic theater in a four act play entitled "Agnes," by George Cameron. The piece contained one really strong act, but sank back into disappointing mediocrity at the close. Miss O'Neil's characterization of a typical heroine of the cheaper melodramatic school was thoroughly stagy. She moved about the stage in a restless, nervous manner, which was accentuated by the continual movement of her hands.

"Agnes" tells the story of a woman whose husband disappears for years. As this is a play, of course she marries another man and of course husband No. 1, having provided himself with an unexpiring return ticket, comes back and proves a fly in the ointment of conjugal bliss. Husband No. 2, this being a play, was of course a brain specialist and of course obtains a new patient whom he cures of loss of memory. Pupil No. 5, the dullest scholar in our kindergarten class, will now rise and state that the owner of the tailor made brain proved to be the missing husband, who very thoughtfully dies. The originality of this plot will immediately strike all those persons who have never seen a play or read a book.

TOUR OF TENOR O'MARA.
Ireland's greatest tenor, Joseph O'Mara, will make a tour of the United States. He will appear in the romantic Irish opera, "Peggy Macuire," the production which the late Denis O'Sullivan headed last year.

O'Mara is a Limerick boy. He was educated in the Jesuit college in that city, and when a lad sang alto in and led the famous choir of the Limerick cathedral. He is the youngest son of James O'Mara, J. P., known as the grand old man of the Irish national movement, and many important political questions were discussed in his Limerick home by Butt and Parnell and other leading Irishmen. His brother, Stephen O'Mara, is one of the treasurers of the Irish parliamentary fund. The O'Maras are one of the oldest and most practical Catholic families in Ireland.

He has the distinction of being the first artist in England who sang before the king after his accession to the throne. He is considered to be the finest exponent of the tenor music in Liza Lehmann's "In a Persian Garden" and has been chosen by her to create the tenor parts in her works.

MAXINE ELLIOTT, STAR IN "MYSELF--BETTINA."

Chicago, In Middle West, Yale and Princeton, In East, Have Fast Elevens

CAREFUL observation of the work of the leading football teams of the east, west and south shows at this early date that Yale and Princeton appear strongest in the east, University of Chicago in the west, or middle west, and Vanderbilt university in the south.

Yale's pigskin maulers probably do not average the weight of Harvard's, but they make up for that in speed, a desirable point under the present rules of play. Princeton has a team with members built about like Yale's, and the Jersey men in preliminary trials have shown better training than either Yale or Harvard. However, that may not count for much, and Coach Roper and Captain Eddie Dillon should take care not to overtrain their men, as has been done before on certain occasions at Princeton.

Chicago's Great Quarterback.

Chicago has developed even more strength than was indicated at the opening of the season. Probably Captain Walter Steffen, the greatest quarterback of the times, is as much responsible for this as Head Coach Stagg himself. Steffen is a genius at getting work out of a team, at getting his men to hustle in practice as though they were in a game for the western championship. He is in the best position a captain can hold, at quarterback, for he is thus enabled to control the general action of his team at all times, especially during the time his team is attacking, when his team has possession of the ball. And, in addition, young Steffen is ranked by leading experts as above even Walter Eckersall, his predecessor, in kicking ability.

Eddie Dillon of Princeton appears like the closest rival to Steffen for the American team. Dillon's aptitude in returning punts is considered little short of sensational.

Yale and West Point.

Yale was considered to be at a disadvantage in having the West Point Military academy game so early on its schedule, for the soldiers are always ready for a grueling battle earlier than the other big teams. The pointing of a team so early in the season for a game as difficult as the usual West Point contest is likely to have an after-effect of a nature to injure a college team. It is as much of a strain, as a rule, to play either Princeton or Harvard as West Point.

Yale, Chicago and Princeton appear to be the fastest teams in the country today, and they may be said to have reaped more advantage from the new rules than any other teams.

Vanderbilt university has been one of the leaders of the southern advance in football. The warm weather of the south, however, is so decided a handicap that it appears doubtful if the Dixieland elevens will ever reach the standard of play set by the east and west. Football teams cannot practice or play at their best in warm weather. Football in the south is firmly established, and the number of players is increasing at a rapid rate. Vanderbilt headed the Southern Intercollegiate Football association, with Sewanee university second, and more players from Vanderbilt found places on the All Southern association team than from any other of the thirteen association teams.

Kentucky State college looks to have the best team among the six Kentucky elevens in the Kentucky Intercollegiate Athletic association. Of the seven academic teams in South Carolina the Clemson eleven now looks the best.

That New York-Chicago Tie Decision.

It is now developing that several members of the Chicago National league baseball team believe that the much discussed tie game should have been awarded to New York, though several of the team, including Evers, Frank Chance and Shockhard, claim with President Charles Murphy that the least President Pulliam and the National commission could have done was to do just what they did do—call the game a tie and order it replayed.

Even hundreds of Chicago fans, in addition to several Chicago National players, consider President Pulliam to have materially injured the cause of baseball by deciding that New York did not win the disputed game, one which depended the National league championship and which had vital bearing on the world's championship. After Pulliam's decision the commission could not overrule it without making Pulliam appear ridiculous, and apparently in order to save humiliating the entire National league by showing up its president the commission finally concluded that it would support Pulliam's decision. So the grotesque farce was perpetrated of a National league championship race being decided on the merest technicality in the private office of a partisan league president known to have been on bad terms with the team he decided against.

The Intent of the Rules.

To such a pass has the grandest of all games descended. It is all right to talk about the rules being upheld, but how about the spirit or intent of the rules? Does the National league president contend that baseball is so much of a business that the element of sportsman-ship he seemingly despises has no place therein at all? The great American baseball public is made up of sportsmen who admire Mr. Pulliam's ability in procuring an immense raise in salary from the league, but who do not all agree with him in using his office to drag down our nation's greatest pastime. True, prizefights, horse races and wrestling matches have been known to have been conducted as "per programme" or won or lost on technicalities that had actually no material bearing on the contest, but surely Mr. Pulliam does not want to give quick tempered persons an opportunity to classify baseball with sporting enterprises that are sometimes brought under unsportsmanlike influences. While Mr. Pulliam was honest in making his decision, he used lamentably poor judgment, even poorer judgment than he has shown regarding past disputes over umpires. His narrow, feeble conception of what baseball really means to the American public will have baneful results on the game that will not be overcome for years, and he is shown to be one who apparently believes there is no intent or spirit in a law other than what the law actually says. The efforts and study of an entire baseball team, manager, coaches and officials, can be nullified by the excited action of an individual player whose action had not and could not have had any possible bearing, material or immaterial, on the actual result of the game as played on the field.

And also Mr. Pulliam apparently be-

KILLED BY WOMAN

Mrs. Alberta Says She Shot in Self-defense

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Rosie Alberta, aged 41, whose husband, Joe, conducted a saloon, yesterday shot and killed Zito Frappanino, a baker, whose place of business is under the saloon. As the man fell the woman knelt over his unconscious form and begged him to live. Mrs. Alberta is held on a charge of murder.

According to the story told by Mrs. Alberta to the police, Frappanino tried to molest her and she shot him to protect herself. John Parillo, the business partner of Frappanino, declared the shooting was the result of a long standing grudge held by the Albertas against himself and his partner, and was unprovoked by Frappanino.

WM. E. BADGER POLICE OFFICER

May be Appointed to Shot and Killed by a Health Board Detective

A report has been in circulation for the last few days to the effect that Mayor Farnham will appoint William E. Badger of the Locks and Canals to the board of health. Mr. Badger is an ex-alderman, and once acting mayor. Asked today if there was any truth to the report that he would send Mr. Badger's name to the board of aldermen for the board of health, Mayor Farnham said: "There is absolutely nothing new in the board of health situation. Mr. Badger has asked me for an interview, but I haven't seen him yet, and I don't know that his interview will have anything to do with the board of health business."

PITTSBURG, Oct. 22.—City Detective Edeburn early this morning shot and almost instantly killed Policeman Thomas Farrell, whom, it is said, he mistook for a highwayman, although the police department refuse to give out any details of the tragedy.

The officers were stationed on the north side and Farrell, it is said, had arrested a bartender on Melrose avenue and his prisoner was fighting him when Edeburn appeared. Farrell fired several shots just then and Edeburn opened fire when he reached the place. Farrell was in plain clothes.

PRETTY PARTY

BY ST. JOHN'S LADIES' AUXILIARY

One of the prettiest dancing parties of the season was held last night in the town hall, North Chelmsford, by the St. John's Ladies' Auxiliary, and like all other parties it was a grand success.

The hall was tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and the stage front was formed in a hedge of greenery set with potted plants.

There were delegations present from the various Catholic societies of Lowell and Billerica.

At 8 o'clock dancing commenced, music being furnished by the Middlesex orchestra of Lowell, and it was with regret that the strains of the last waltz died away at 12 o'clock.

During intermission ice cream and cake were served in the lower hall. The committee in charge was: Marie Valentine, Mrs. Thomas McTeague, Mrs. Fred Gaudette, floor director, Rose McTeague; assistant floor director, Mamie Tobin; chief aid, Annie LaFrance; reception committee, Belle Valentine and Mamie Cox. After the party a late car returned to Lowell.

Notice: I, the undersigned, do hereby refuse to acknowledge or pay any bill that may be contracted by my wife, Mrs. John Keedy, she having left my bed and board without due cause. This will in particular refer to goods that she may purchase in my name.
